Hongkong, July 20th, 1878. Our Shanghai morning contemporary gives currency to a rumour that Ch'ung How, now Military Governor of Feng-tien, and notorious through having been the bearer of an I apology to Paris after the Tientsin Massacre, is about to be accredited as Ambassador to sented in London, Paris, and Berlin; and our contemporary therefore leaps to the conclusion that St. Petersburg is the destination of the port of Lima which had accepted a charter to once and had been in gaol, but I had to take the mate with me to Brunswick. I am not aware of such a custom gant period last year, when the average temperanew Envoy. This is highly probable. There is no other Power in Europe whose commercial relations with China are so large as those of Russia, with the exception of the three already honoured with Chinese Ministers, and it is consequently pretty certain that. Ch'une How, if despatched anywhere abroad, will go to St. Petersburg. There are, moreover, questions between the two countrieswhich the Government of Peking would like to see settled. Now that Kashgar has fallen into Chinese hands, the rulers of Peking naturally wish to secure it against further rebellion or intrigue. They do not want to have to repeat their work over again. It has been costly and difficult, and might upon the cargo have proved far more so had Russia chosen to place impediments in the way of the Chinese Generals. But that was not Muscovite policy. It suited Russia best to see the power of the Ameer broken, and into a formidable Mahomedan kingdom dothe Chinese army with grain, and maintained a benevolent neutrality throughout the contest. A DISPUTED CHARTER PARTY TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS." Sin.—In September last I closed at Lima with Mr. Vicauor Tejerina a charter for the German barque Hydra under my command: to take to Amoy a carge of guano at the rate of £4 sterling per ton guano delivered at Amoy. This amount of freight was stipulated in the charter-party, and the bills of lading were made out, "freight as per charter party." The charterer at Lima was a stranger to me. On offering me the above charter he made the condition that I should refund him £1 sterling per ton freight on each ton guano delivered after collection of the stipulated freight at Amoy. This condition I consented yearly dividends. to accept and gave charterer accordingly a promissory note to the effect that, after collection of freight at the rate of £4 sterling per ton due to the vessel at Amoy, I would pay him £1 starling out of every £4 starling per ton received. On my arrival at Amoy I duly commenced discharging the cargo, naturally presuming that freight would be paid to me in accordance with the terms of the charter party. While discharging I received several amounts of money on account of freight due, and nothing was said or done by the consignees of the cargo to dis-HONGKONG DISPENSARY. The owners of cargo likewise refused to let me have my charter-party back, which I had handed says that the first national assembly of the new Bulgaria will probably most next month. The Assembly will consist of from 350 to 400 deputies, who will have to consider the electoral bill brought in by the Russian Government. According to this bill all Bulgarians who pay taxes will have the franchise and be qualified to come forward as candidates for the assembly, but only those may be elected who can read and write. The Russian Government intends to dissolve the Assembly as sconne thoelegteral bill has been passed; the membors will then take part in the provincial councils, after which a general election, based on the new law, will take place, so as to enable the Assembly to meet on the 2nd of January, 1879. This second Assembly will have, among other work, to prepare laws for the judicial and other administrations, and to fix the budget for the year. The session is to be a short one, and the Assembly will be subject to the orders of the higher administrative functionaries. Shartly before the expiration of the period of the Bussian occupation, at third meeting of the Assembly is to take place for the election of a prince. The correspondent adds that, in order to extend the use of the Russian language in Bulgaria, a considerable number of the Bulgarian olergy, officials, and students are to be sent to the Russian universities, where they will study under the supervision of officials specially appointed for the purpose. The military organi-sation of the Bulgarians, too, is proceeding with great success. Besides the 6,000 Bulgarian militia who were employed in the war, 9,000 recruits have been levied, who will serve for the present in the instructional battalions of the Russian regiments. These 15,000 men will form the cadres of the national army of the future principality. This is written, of course, on the assumption that there will be one Bulgaria, as General Ignatioff proposed, and not two, as is now generally anticipated...

THE RUSSIAN PRESS ON ENGLAND'S EASTERN POLICY.

The Goles gives the following account of the policy of England in the Eastern Question :-Every Englishman, whatever party he may belong to, recognizes the necessity of England's maintaining such prestige in the East as to make any solution of the Eastern Question without Dry Thomsometer. ... 80.0 87.0 87.0 87.0 87.0 75.0 76.0 84.9 81.9 her co-operation impossible, and knows that such prestige is indispensable for the maintenance of the British rule in India. At the time when Disraeli became the head of the Conservative party this prestige had sunk to its lowest ebb. Mr. Gladstone's pacific and colourless policy secured to England the blossings ponce, but lowered her in international relations. When the Conservatives came into power, they demanded a bold foreign policy, conformably with their traditions, in order to silence the cry for internal reform. The ever-young Eastern Question gave the Government the opportunity of reconquering for England her former position in Europe. By refusing to take part in the Berlin Memorandum she made that document inoperative, and her political authority increased accordingly. The protocols of the Constantinople Conference, and all that depended upon them, show what immense prestige England has gained. When the war broke out Lord Beacons. field expected that it would totally exhaust the soldiers astonished and frightened England, but only for a short time. Directly Turkey lay at the feet of Russia England began to act. She armed openly for a struggle with Russis, percoiving that the moment had arrived whon the whole of England's prestige in the East was in danger of disappearing before the victorious advance of our army. England was ready to declare war; but there was no casus belli, for Russia had conscientiously fulfilled the conditions which England laid down in May, 1877, as the basis for her neutrality. Then England changed her policy; she came forward as the defender of European law and of the sacredness of international treaties. Russia was represented as the enemy of Europe, the insatiable conqueror, the violator of treaties. England attained her object-Europe all the time forgetting that England never abandons even for a moment her selfish interests. And now Mr. Layard is the

Vice-Sultan, and his orders are unresistingly

The following account is published of the raising of two sunken ships in the outer roads off the port of Montevidec, in the La Plata :-- In 1878 the Workington, a full-rigged ship of 2,000 tons, laden with coals, and on fire, was souttled in the roads, and settled into soft mud, so that her topsailyards were only visible above the water. She was bought by a Frenchman. He at once secured all her top-hamper for staging on which to erect purchases [and did not strip her, as the Eurydice was stripped) to discharge her cargo with and work his divers' pumps from. He had strong Pampero winds, and three or four knot currents to contend against. However, by working both day and night, and in as bad and exposed position as though the ship had been off the Isle of Wight, he discharged all the cargo of coals, then commenced to fill the hold with wine casks, which were stowed below by six divers. The casks had an inch hole bored in each head, then filled with water, and a long spiggot placed in the holes, then slung in a chain lowered to the divers (the chains helping to sink the cask) and placed into position by them; when there they had only to: take out both plags, insert the end of the air nozzle into one hole and blow the water out by the other. then plug them both up, when the cask would be filled with air. Upon one calm day they thus placed 250 casks. They stuck to the job for nine | 2i 7101 weeks, and brought the ship out of her bed in which she had settled 13 feet deep into the harbour. The tremendous force of the united efforts, of the casks had burst her upper deck and so strained her deck beams that they had to be taken out and repaired. The ship, under the name of Porteno, is now affost, and has made many profitable voyages for her owner. Now, the divers said they experienced no difficulty while working in the hold from current or rough water, but were L E A A N D P E R R I N only troubled by the darkness and the slippery settlements left on all footing by the sand deposits. of which the hold had, at least, 50 tons, and this had to be lifted with the fron hull of the ship. iron lowermasts, bowsprit, lower yards, and all dock gear. The second case was a wooden brig out down by a steamer to the water's edge which was treated in a like manner, only that the immense hole in her side had to be planked and covered with canvas. She was successfully brought into harbour, although seven miles out side when she went down, and in a channel where the whole force of the river is constantly running at four to four and a half knots, and not three

For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have to late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance. of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained; forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained.
